

Jon Wood is an active professional musician in the Twin Cities area of Minnesota with performances on guitar, electric and upright bass, mandolin, ukulele, banjo, and cajon. Venues Jon has performed at include Jazz Central Studios in Minneapolis for their Monday Night Artist Feature and Thursday Night Vocal Series, the Artist's Quarter in St. Paul, the Dakota Jazz Club in Minneapolis, Saturday Night Jazz at the Black Dog, The St. Paul Art Crawl, Zorongo Flamenco Dance Theater and School, Honey Restaurant, Bedlam Theater, Thursday Musical, Minnesota Public Radio's KBEM 88.5, and a performance at Orchestra Hall that was nationally re-broadcast by Twin Cities Public Television (TPT).

Along with his performing background, Jon is also involved in music education. As a private studio instructor Jon teaches a several styles of music on guitar, bass, banjo, mandolin, and ukulele. Jon was a graduate assistant at Illinois State University (ISU) where he taught guitar to music therapy and music education majors, directed a guitar small ensemble, and handled other administrative duties for the department and the ISU guitar society. During grad school Jon was also an adjunct professor for guitar and bass at Lincoln College in Lincoln Illinois.

Jon received a masters degree in classical guitar performance at ISU and graduated in spring 2017. He continues to perform and teach throughout the twin cities area.